

Community Programs

Chairman's Message

I hope you find this brochure an informative and helpful guide to the various Community Programs the New Jersey State Parole Board sponsors. Through these community based treatment and support services we strive to promote the successful re-integration of parolees.

By addressing underlying addictions, job and life skills deficiencies, and other barriers parolees face, and must overcome, we are implementing a holistic approach to parole. This approach will increase public safety and reduce re-offending.

Sincerely,

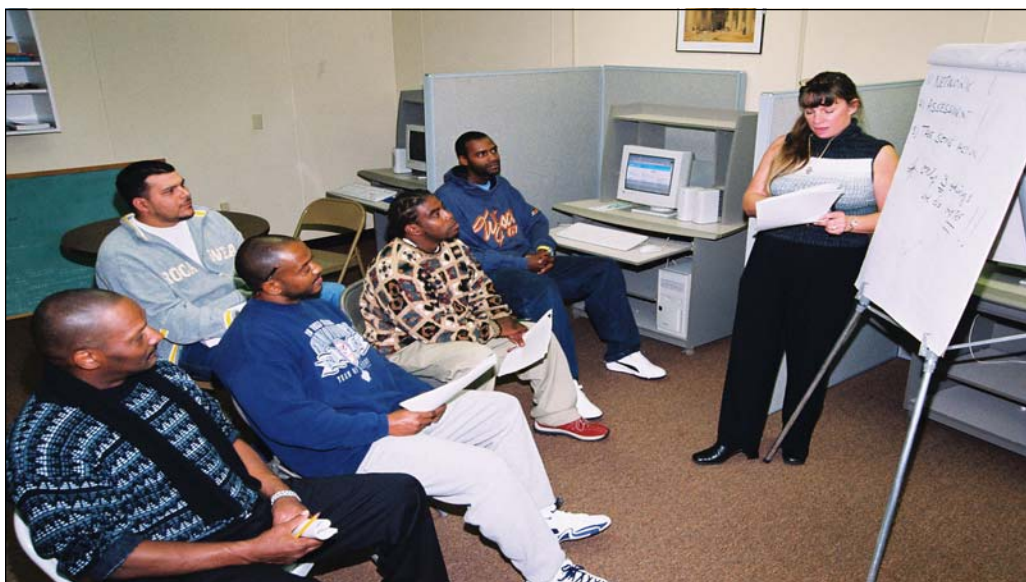

John D'Amico

State Parole Board Community Programs Unit

An Introduction

Parolees participate in a GED certificate program at a Day Reporting Center.

The Community Programs Unit is an administrative unit of the New Jersey State Parole Board dedicated to developing, coordinating and managing the provision of quality treatment and services to individuals under parole supervision. This is done through community-based programs, community partnerships, grant initiatives and special projects designed to support the re-entry and effective supervision of offenders, to promote pro-social behavior and to improve the quality of life in our communities.

This unit administers contracts for the operation of Day Reporting Centers, the Halfway Back program, the Mutual Agreement Program and the Re-entry Substance Abuse Program. Responsibilities include contract administration, grant management, offender referral and placement, program monitoring, quality assurance, development of applicable policies and procedures, and maintenance essential records and data.

The State Parole Board and its district parole offices work in partnership with community-based programs to develop and maintain a continuum of treatment, support services and supervision that encourages and aids offenders in completing their supervision in the community.

Day Reporting Centers—DRC

Sr. PO Peter Haake and a counselor work with a parolee at Opportunities for All DRC in Princeton.

Day Reporting Centers (DRC) are non-residential multi-service centers that serve as an alternative sanction in lieu of incarceration for technical parole violators. The centers operate 10 hours per day, 7 days per week, and are designed to maintain the parolee in the community through life skill development and other service enriched intervention strategies. Length of stay in the DRC is ninety days.

The State Parole Board has contracted with seven private providers to operate DRC's; each consisting of 50 slots for parolees. Participants are expected to attend the DRC all day, every day until the assigned parole officer authorizes a program discharge or modifies his or her level of supervision. Any advancement of the status of the parolee is viewed as a reinforcement for a positive adjustment to the program.

Target Population

The program is designed to provide an alternative to a denial of parole by the Board, or as an alternative sanction for parolees who have violated condition (s) of parole.

Program Services

DRC program services include:

1. Orientation, which includes needs assessment;
2. Education services including literacy, GED, and ESL;
3. Vocational employment services, such as job readiness and job placement programs;
4. Substance abuse education and treatment;
5. Community service restitution;
6. Team building and physical training;
7. Independent living skills;
8. Family counseling; and
9. Discharge and after-care placement.

Urine monitoring is conducted on the parolees as part of program participation.

Mutual Agreement Program—MAP

Mutual Agreement Program (MAP) facilities are privately licensed residential substance abuse treatment programs located throughout the state. These facilities provide a highly structured environment, MAP offers the Board the flexibility to parole offenders into a supportive program.

which introduces intensive therapy for behavioral and psychological problems related to addiction. Therapeutic activities include group therapy, role-play, group dynamic and individual counseling all with the purpose of behavior modification. Both inmates and parolees are integrated into the highly structured treatment community along with the private citizens who have agreed to commit themselves to participate in recovery.

The program was first implemented in 1984 as a cooperative effort among the Department of Corrections, the Department of Health and the State Parole Board.

Target Population

The goal of this program is to afford the opportunity of private chemical abuse treatment as a special precondition of parole for inmates who otherwise might not achieve parole status. MAP can also be required as a special condition of parole for parolees to reduce the likelihood of returning to criminal behavior. All participants placed in a MAP program must successfully complete the program as determined by the individual facility treatment staff. Inmates who fail to complete the program are returned to immediate incarceration. Parolees who fail are referred for revocation of parole

Outpatient Services

In addition to residential treatment, MAP has contracted, in some counties, with outpatient facilities to provide a continuum of treatment for those who have successfully completed an institutional or private residential treatment program. Such facilities provide aftercare and community networking as a reinforcement of a parole plan and may be utilized by respective district parole offices as alternatives to re-incarceration for appropriate technical parole violators.

Halfway Back Program

Halfway Back Programs (HWB) are residential treatment facilities operated by non-profit provider under contract with the Board that provide treatment services to technical parole violators. The programs are designed as a more structured alternative sanction in lieu of incarceration for parolees.

A parole coordinator is assigned, on site, to each HWB program to ensure the orderly transition of parolees to the program from county jails, state correctional institutions and district parole offices.

Target Population

Offenders are assigned to this program as a special condition of parole or as a condition of release on parole. Length of participation, which may be a maximum of 180 days, is determined by the resident's progress in the program.

Program Services

Program services are tailored to meet the special needs of offenders as identified through an assessment process or as prescribed by the Board. Parolees assigned to the program receive a prescriptive program plan that addresses their needs with required timeline to achieve specified objectives and treatment goals. Services include intensive drug treatment, relapse prevention, life skills development, anger and aggression management, job readiness skills, employment counseling, academic assistance, money management, fumittee (PRC) comprised of program treatment staff and Board staff meet to review parolees' progress in the program and determine when a parolee may be discharged from the program and recommends the imposition of special conditions of parole to the district office.

The PRC's review includes: risk and needs assessments, drug and alcohol assessments, level of participation in the program, progress in meeting individualized treatment goals, clinical recommendations and future case supervision plan.

The parole coordinator will ensure that the discharge plans and recommendations are forwarded to and reviewed with the district staff. The parole coordinator also insures that any special conditions imposed by the district supervisory staff are reviewed and signed by the parolee.

Re-Entry Substance Abuse Program—RESAP

The Re-entry Substance Abuse Program (RESAP) is a 6-month residential substance abuse treatment program for offenders who are eligible for parole but who have a chronic substance abuse history.

The targeted offenders may be divided into three groups. The first group consists of individuals who have relapsed and resumed drug use, which has resulted in reincarceration. The second group are individuals who have had some initial treatment exposure while in prison but who need to continue and conclude inpatient treatment. The third group are those with no prior treatment and who need a full six months of residential treatment.

The RESAP is assessment-driven and focus primarily on identifying the offender's "triggers" and working with the individual to eliminate them. The program utilizes both individual and group treatment activities and works to develop the offenders' cognitive, behavioral, social, and vocational skills to solve substance abuse related problems.

RESAP program services include assessment, intensive drug and alcohol treatment, life skills development, family involvement, parenting skills, stress and anger management, relapse prevention training, drug testing, pre-employment services, placement services and discharge planning.

Discharge Plan

The "discharge plan" is a primary component of RESAP that identifies coordinates the needs and provisions of after-care services so that there will be continuity of treatment when the offender is released to the community on parole or upon expiration of sentence.
